Buff, brief history of the brand

Having worked in the textile industry for 25 years making collars and cuffs to brand-linked to European football, Juan Rojas decided to launch his own business linked to the textile industry.

After experimenting with different materials, Rojas found a microfiber breathable, moisture resistant and wind, which produce seamless garments.

In January 1998, Buffera -like derivation of the Spanish word "scarf"- was founded by Julian Peppit with the ultimate goal to market and distribute the revolutionary and multifunctional Buff throughout Europe.

In the late nineties the textile company based in Igualada (Barcelona) decided to promote their products through sports.

In 1998 Buff enrolls as computer Raid Eco-Challenge adventure in that edition was held in Morocco: "... at the end of the test the majority of the participants were using an Original Buff" recalls Juan Rojas.

Since then, Buff has become a benchmark for the European textile industry and essential accessory for many athletes around the world.

Buff Currently the team is present in different sports sections in many competitions and national and international calendar.
